RMahoney@fwlaw.com

Ryan represents his corporate clients in all aspects of a business life cycle. His practice focuses on corporate transactional law, with an emphasis on mergers and acquisitions, securities law, and general corporate matters. He has extensive experience in conducting due diligence and drafting agreements for mergers and acquisitions, early-stage financings and in commercial transactions. Ryan also counsels public, private, and emerging growth company clients on securities law compliance, corporate governance, and a broad range of transactional matters.

Before joining Fairfield and Woods, Ryan practiced with one of Denver's largest law firms and, prior to that, the Denver office of an international law firm. His diverse background gives him a deep understanding of complex corporate transactions and regulatory compliance, ensuring that his clients are well-positioned to achieve their business goals.
